The draw for round 5 is particularly interesting on the lower boards. Chris Chin will get his first taste against a top player and how will Jody deal with the unorthodox approach of Tim Feng. But the game of the round is Elliott Renzies [under rated] against the power of Kevin Brown that is provided Elliott is back from Queensland. Mind you The top two boards are not so bad either Shane has worked his way to top board with an excellent win over talented Ari Dale and former champion Bill Kerr takes on current champion Chris Wallis

The march ratings

The following somewhat mysterious note regarding the March ratings was posted on Chess chat by the ACF ratings officer. It seems almost everyone got a bonus increase

The ACF March 2011 rating lists have been sent to the ACF Webmaster and the State Rating Officers.

As a number of people have been aware, for about the last 24 months the ACF Rating Officers have been testing various systemic changes to further improve predictive accuracy. As is usual with any systemic change all rating periods from December 2000 thru to December 2010 have been re-run. These new ratings will be in effect before the calculation and publication of the March 2011 ratings.

One effect of this change is that the average rating of players on the December 2010 list is increased by around 60 points.
