As the arbiter I found the tournament most interesting particularly the effect of the permanent acceleration on Swiss Perfect. The computer coped well. There are always people who will dispute the program's solution to the complicated FIDE pairing rules, [one only has to read the Know alls on the chat boards] but I do not find it so. The selections for the last round were brilliant and showing us what in my view guides it:

To be the equally unfair to all

U10 girls champion
Jody Middleton middle
U12 girls champion

There was a good gathering of 17 girl players not quite getting to last year's record of 21 but then the overall numbers did not quite match last year's record either. All in all a very pleasant tournament and a credit to the arbiter Peter Tsai

So where do we go from here? The tradition at the Box Hill Chess Club demands play offs. The most famous one being a six-way play off in the early 90s which I might be able to get Trevor to relate. This is what we need to do .

2 games for the championship with tie breaks short games in case of another tie.

A round robin between B division winners and if necessary short game tie break. Good luck. I will publish a schedule after consultation with the players

The following game was played in the last round of the club championship. The last round is very important in a swiss tournament as the difference could be a good tournament or a bad tournament. In professional chess the last round can make one rich or poor. Sam was unlucky with his last round pairing as he played a player rated 420 points above him while his competitors in the B division played lower rated players so Sam had to play for a win no matter what. Also thank you goes to Roger and Sam for agreeing to have their game published.
